AN architect friend, long in Carmel, would have a building ordinance there, forbidding residences over six thousand dollars in cost. He fears the inevitable, apartment-houses, gaudy palaces. I think he's right. Carmel could be, unless an extraordinary fate intervenes, a vulgar, stupid town, within twenty years. Then Jeffers will be an exhibit, or stoned; The Carmelite dead or censored, and a Chamber of Commonness in control. And, I won't know about it.

SHAW says: "In Russia, everybody's too busy to go to church, but anyone who wants to, can go to church. In London, the magnificent churches are empty." Religion, love of God, have naught to do with churches; no more than love of woman has to do with motorcars. You can worship God in a church, and make love in a motorcar. But, they are not necessary. Infact, both are cramped quarters for burning souls.

A PHOTO of Rudy Vallee, in "Ballyhoo," a weekly, is labelled, The Ham What Am. A ham in the theatre is a bum performer, a very, old word. "Ballyhoo" continues: The largest selling ham in the world. The ham that never varies. Always the same. You can be sure of its exquisite tenderness, its mildness, its hammy flavor. You said it all, about that odious crooner and saxaphagist, "Ballyhoo." The instrument, saxaphage, is so called because it is supposed to dissolve stones in the bladder. See the dictionary!

THE Republican National Committee says that in 1932 the choice will be Republicanism or Sovietism. Mayhap, the Democrats will have a say. Some new group, by splitting the Republican party, may ensure a Democratic victory. The Democrats will never split, in sinell of the feed trough after years of job hunger. Nor probishn nor evolution can nose out the faithful with the Promised Land in sight.

City Tax Rate Reduced

Paring three cents off the library tax and two cents off the sand dunes bond retirement charge, the City Council last night fixed the rate for the ensuing year at one dollar twenty-nine cents in the hundred dollars. The rate is apportioned:

General tax	$1.00
Library	0.22
Sand Dunes	0.03
Fire Bonds (1930)	0.04

The rate for the current year is one dollar thirty-four cents; for the preceding year (before the fire bond issue) one dollar thirty cents.

Considerable discussion preceded fixing of the rate, centered about the library tax. Mr. Paul Prince, for the library board, asked for a continuance of the current rate—twenty-five cents; Mayor Heron held the library to be too expensive in operation, and favored a reduction.

W. A. Dontanville, Salinas contractor, was awarded the contract for the installation of the Mission street storm sewer after further investigation of the bids opened last week. The Dontanville bid was $11,120.15, only $3.95 lower than that of M. J. Murphy, Inc. The Clark & Henry Construction Company was the only other bidder, at $13,844.03. Dontanville plans to commence work within three weeks.

Permission to remove a tree near the driveway at the Miller Motor Company's new premises was denied after discussion. The application of the Candide Gallery for a sign permit was granted.

Highway Fatality

Miss Euphemia R. Black, librarian of the Christian Science reading room, Carmel, was killed in an automobile accident near Orcutt yesterday morning. With her at the time of the tragic occurrence was Miss Grace I. Hamilton, also of Carmel, who is believed to have escaped serious injury.

The Search Recital

by GLORIA STUART

In a concert characterized by uneven virtuosity, and fine eclecticism, Frederick Preston Search, 'cellist, appeared for the first time in over a year before a Carmel audience at the Studio Theatre of the Golden Bough Tuesday evening.

The first group of pieces was thoughtfully balanced, and served to warm Mr. Search to his instrument. Glazounoff's forlorn "Chant du Menestrel" opened the program. "Vito," a gay Spanish dance by Popper, closing it. The restrained melancholy of Glazounoff's minstrel song seemed to say it was the last that troubadours of courtly love would ever sing. A number that at once demanded sympathy and a thorough command of Mr. Search's musical faculties was Davidoff's "At the Fountain." As was proved by later selections, Search's facility in the lower registers was better than in the higher ones. He also played, in this group, one of his two original compositions that appeared on the program, Minuet in D Major. Here was melodic contour and balance, fresh and vivacious. As an encore, he closed with Faure's "Lamento"—sombre, deep-toned, anguish-laden.

A fantastic Debussy sonata for 'cello and piano formed the second group. It had much atmosphere—a concept in music which we owe to Debussy—but it was too impressionistic to impart the feeling of the sonata form, a perfect musical construction. However, Search fell in with the tricky mood of this piece, and rendered it with careful regard for its complexities.

After the opening two groups, Mr. Search gained full control of his instrument and his own technical excellence in Arthur Honegger's "Sonata for Cello and Piano," performed for the first time in America. The uncertain attack was gone, and the number was played with virility and sensitiveness. Here was

Personalia

Mrs. Carol Aronovici, wife of the internationally known city planner, Carol Aronovici, is staying with Mrs. Marie Gordon at her home on San Antonio for several weeks. Mr. Aronovici has just returned to the United States after attending an International Congress on House Planning in Europe. He is expected on the Peninsula in a few days, and will lecture in Monterey. He is well-known in Carmel, having visited here two years ago.

Mrs. James Hopper, of Carmel, has just returned from a two months visit to Yosemite Valley, where she has an established camp. Her three daughters, Miss Marion, Miss Jane, and Mrs. Wilfred Hunkins were with her. Mrs. Hunkins also had her son, Wilfred, Jr., along. Several Carmel residents visited the camp during the Hoppers' stay there, among whom were Mrs. L. A. Shipley, Miss Lois Love, and Mr. Ambrose Love.

Doctor and Mrs. D. T. MacDougal entertained Sunday night at their home in Carmel Highlands for the Rio Piedros Club, one of Carmel's oldest organizations. The club has recently purchased thirty acres from the Hoag Ranch in the Big Sur country, which adjoined the south end of the club's property.

Elmer Cox, Sr., Harry Leon Wilson and his daughter, Caris, Grace Bell O'Brien, and Mary Saiberin left today for a visit to Yosemite. They will stay over the week-end and will return Monday to Carmel.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Block, from San Francisco, and Miss A. B. Dobson, a teacher from Iowa, are staying with Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Schilling on Casanova street this week.

Several university students from Carmel have left for the opening of the fall semester at the University of California in Berkeley, among them being Mr. James Hopper, Mr. William Heron, Mr. Thomas Warren, and Mr. Robert Drews.

Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Stover had as guests for the week-end, Miss Margaret Fishbeck from San Francisco, and Miss Amy May, and Alfred May from Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sayre are the parents of a baby boy, Arthur Sayre, Jr. The child was born Sunday night at the Carmel Hospital.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 13, 1931

Miss Lillian Remillard, of Carmel and San Francisco, left yesterday for that city after spending several days in the new home she has built here. Miss Remillard is a prominent patron of the arts and of music.

Mrs. H. M. Bayley, Hatton Fields, and her three children, Norman, Harry, and Mary Jo, have left for Lake Tahoe where they will stay for two weeks. They will return to Carmel early in September.

ESPINAL'S COSTUMES

Scarcely less interesting than Luisa Espinal's dancing and singing are the costumes she wears in her "Folk Miniatures of Spain." In the two programs which she gives in the Denny-Watrous Gallery on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, Miss Espinal uses eight different costumes. Each provincial costume in a measure reflects the temperament of the district's people. The Valencian costume, to be worn Friday, is the gayest of all Spanish provincial costumes, reflecting the brilliance of Mediterranean life, the care-free ways of the peasants. This costume is a brocade of the eighteenth century, in the family of the Saroellas until the wife of the painter, Joaquin Saroella, gave it to Espinal.

The Salamanca costume, on the other hand, has all the austerity, dignity, pride and richness of Castile. It has fifteen pieces, is very heavy, and the songs sung in it, as "Los Pastores," have the same dignity of movement.

An interesting part of the program will be the group of unaccompanied street cries, or "progon," which will be heard for the first time in Carmel.

Luisa Espinal arrived in Carmel yesterday from the South.

ENGLISH POTTERY

Mrs. George Fredrick Watts, widow of the late English painter, has built up a fine pottery village in Surrey, England. She is a sculptress, and taught these villagers the art of the potter's wheel, no element of machinery entering into the business. Watts has a full room devoted to his work in the Tate Gallery in London. He and William de Morgan, another English painter, made a study of pottery, but not in a commercial way.

The Corner Cupboard shop has received a consignment of this pottery in soft, rich tones, and graceful forms. An interesting part of the collection are the medallions in terra cotta. These small plaques delineate scenes from Watts' canvases. Joan of Arc, Saint George, Sir Galahad and signs of the Zodiac are among the subjects shown. They are hung on leather thongs, or on chains of small wooden beads.

AN APPRECIATION OF KUSTER
(Continuing "What the Cast Thinks of 'Beggar on Horseback.'")

The reception of "Beggar on Horseback" by Carmel audiences must have been very gratifying to Mr. Kuster, who worked so hard to put on the production so successfully.

I regard it as a rare privilege to be in the cast. It is an amusing play—lots of action and a delightful crowd to work with. I have never worked with a more enthusiastic crowd of players. We all enjoyed the parts assigned to us and the determination to 'put the play over' was unanimous.

I did not see the program until yesterday, and in reading Mr. Kuster's open letter thereon, I felt a pang of regret there is even a possibility of the theatre being closed.

In striving to maintain the distinction of Carmel as an art colony and really offering a way for people to develop their talent and at the same time offering real enjoyment to our people, I regard Mr. Kuster as our most valued citizen. He does things.

We all have something to offer and I think now is the time to offer it in order to keep such a man as Kuster in our midst. This is just as much up to the business men and women of Carmel as it is to others.

The Studio Theatre not only offers good entertainment, it is also a great asset to the community and if it has to be closed I know the loss will be greater to Carmel than to Mr. Kuster, the owner.

"The effort should not be so great, should it, Mr. Cady?" Here's wishing you luck, Ted, and I trust everyone will respond. We need you and the Studio Theatre both. "Homer is sick" but he will recover.

vibrant tonality, and a complex polyphonic style that conjured up the scene of unwilling souls crossing the River Styx, with the gaunt and grave figure at the helm. And although Honegger veers from pictorial aspects, emphasizing the purely musical ones, Mr. Search's rendition gave his audience a richly harmonic and literary reading.

One of Debussy's loveliest compositions, "Nocturne in D Flat," opened the fourth group. This selection was far superior to the first Debussy in spirit and dreamlike quality, and though it offered Mr. Search less opportunity for virtuosity, it gave him a conception that was subtle to an exceptional degree. "Piece in C Sharp Minor," by Nadis Boulanger, a composer of high talent, was the epitome of whimsical naivete, and rhythmic flow. But it was in the short "Piece en forme de Habanera," by Maurice Ravel, that the program reached its climax both in Search's performance and in musical beauty. It was played with a sensitive touch, and approached by Search with consistent restraint. The dance itself was plaintive and singing. Closing the fourth group was an original composition—its first performance—by Mr. Search, "Rhapsodie Fantastique." It contained a theme of oriental extravagance discussed with occidental lucidity. The harmonic structure progressed with unerring definition. The piece was encored by an enthusiastic audience.

Closing the concert with anticlimax was Saint-Saens' "Concerto in A Minor." His sweetness and clarity failed to stimulate as had other composers on this most ambitious program of moderns. And Frederick Search's eclecticism shone forth in the playing of this piece more than it did at any other time, because of the solid, conventional terms of the composition.

In all, Search's tone was expressive, his intonation certain in most cases, especially in the lower register, his execution vigorous, and his style individual.
